

IACP Community Builder 2022 Awardees Announced

Ames, Iowa – May 13, 2022: IACP is proud to announce nine IACP Community Builder Award 2022 recipients at the IACP Annual Conference & Trade Show at the Scheman Building in Ames.

Frontline Supervisors are the linchpin of the community-based human service industry. From spearheading extraordinary service delivery for vulnerable Iowans to constantly seeking ways to improve the accessibility, transparency, and coordination among their organization's employees, exceptional Frontline Supervisors fervently pursue the vision that one day, all Iowans will live, learn and work in their community of choice.

To recognize the essential role of Frontline Supervisors, in 2018, IACP developed the Community Builder Award. Each year, the awardees have been celebrated at the IACP Annual Conference & Trade Show. Community Builders play a critical role in the lives of 30,000 Iowans who receive community-based services, and we are honored to display and commemorate their efforts.

The IACP Community Builder Award 2022 recipients are Lasara Boles, Mosaic; Alison Brown, Candeo; Ashley Henry, Crest Services; Dillon McHugh, ChildServe; Adam Miller, UI Reach; Morris Misango, Systems Unlimited, Inc; Vickie Pals, Lutheran Services in Iowa; Robert Peck, Exceptional Persons, Inc.; and Elizabeth Schaaf, Balance Autism.

About IACP
